THE ROAD MAP

Overview

An area which does not receive enough attention in Canada, but is now de rigueur in the U.S., is the establishment of comprehensive internal polices and procedures for import and export compliance.

While administratively required in the United States, requests for internal customs policies and procedures generally only arise on the commencement of an audit verification in Canada, and where they do not exist (or are less than comprehensive), that sad fact usually only result in a recommendation that "comprehensive policies and procedures be developed for import/export operations" in the business' Final Verification Report.

Things are slowing changing in Canada, however, and the Canada Customs and Border Agency's ("CBSA") recent decision in late January 2007 to begin administering AMPS on any "direct self corrections, at the conclusion of a compliance verification review or monitoring activity, where it is found that the importer had previous "Reason to Believe", can be expected to raise the stakes for complete customs compliance in all relevant program areas.

Comprehensive policies and procedures to improve and guide customs compliance are therefore the answer.

General Focus of the Presentation

The Presentation (and the balance of these materials) will focus on some of the formal and substantive requirements for developing or improving upon, effective policies and procedures in the import/export area.

The audience is encouraged to participate! So feel free to ask questions at any time.

Drafting & Improving Customs Policies & Procedures

Developing Internal Controls

The following guidance is provided to assist a company in developing adequate internal controls, including policies and procedures for import/export compliance.

Please note that the information and suggestions provided below is not intended to replace proper customs advice, and that it could well change given the particular circumstances in which your business finds itself.

A Useful Framework for Import/Export Compliance

The United States Customs and Border Protection Agency ("U.S. CBP") describes the first steps in developing internal controls as follows:

Systems of internal control should contain the following components:

Control Environment: The Company establishes and maintains an environment that supports [import/export] compliance, including fostering a system that supports compliance, maintaining competent personnel, and maintaining an organizational structure that supports compliance.

Management conveys the message that integrity and ethical values must not be compromised. Management and employees have a positive and supportive attitude toward [import/export] internal controls and conscientious management of ... related operations. Management has a philosophy and operating style that is appropriate to the development and maintenance of effective internal controls for [import/export], as evidenced by the following:

- A commitment to the competence of personnel responsible for [import/export]-related activities. The company educates and trains employees about [import/export] programs that are affected by the employees' jobs. The employees should be educated on the importance of [import/export] activities related to or affected by their job and the possible impact of errors. The employees should be trained adequately to successfully perform the job.
- The company's organizational structure and the way in which it assigns authority and responsibility for [import/export] operations contribute to effective internal controls.
- The company's management cooperates with auditors, does not attempt to hide known problems from them, and values their comments and recommendations.

Risk Assessment: The Company identifies risks to the goal of CBP compliance, analyzes them for possible effects, and designs control activities to manage those risks. The company has established clear and consistent company-wide objectives and supporting activity-level objectives related to CBP activities. The following evidences risk assessment activities:

- Management has made a thorough identification of risks pertaining to CBP activities, from both internal and external sources, which may affect the ability of the company to meet those objectives.
- An analysis of those risks has been performed, and the company has developed an appropriate approach for risk management.
- Mechanisms are in place to identify changes that may affect the company's ability to achieve its missions, goals, and objectives related to CBP activities.

Control Activities: The company documents and implements policies and procedures and other control activities to ensure complete and accurate reporting to CBP as well as compliance with other CBP requirements. Procedures should include the correct reporting of information for value, classification, special trade programs, special duty provisions, and other CBP issues such as quota, antidumping duties, and countervailing duties.

- The control activities identified as necessary are actually being applied properly.
- All documentation of transactions and records are properly managed, maintained, and reviewed as necessary.
- · Control procedures are reviewed and revised as necessary.

Information and Communication: The Company establishes and maintains processes to ensure that relevant, reliable information pertaining to CBP is recorded and communicated through the organization to those who need it and that information provided to CBP is complete and accurate.

Information systems are in place to identify and record pertinent operational and financial information relevant to CBP activities. Management ensures that effective internal communications take place. The company employs various forms of communications appropriate to its needs and manages, develops, and revises its information systems in a continual effort to improve communications. The following evidences effective information and communication for CBP:

- Appropriate information is identified, recorded, and communicated to management responsible for CBP activities and others within the company who need it, in a form that enables them to carry out their duties and responsibilities efficiently and effectively.
- Effective external communications occur with groups that can affect the achievement of the company's missions, goals, and objectives related to CBP activities.
- Individual roles and responsibilities for CBP activities are communicated through policy and procedure manuals.

Monitoring: The Company monitors its [import/export] activities to assess the quality of performance over time and ensure that issues and deficiencies are promptly resolved and that procedures are corrected to prevent recurrence. - Procedures to monitor internal controls occur on an ongoing basis as a part of the process of carrying out regular activities.
- Separate evaluations of internal controls are periodically performed, and deficiencies found are investigated.
- Procedures are in place to ensure that the findings of all audits and other reviews are promptly evaluated, decisions are made about the appropriate response, and actions are taken to correct or otherwise resolve the issues promptly.

THE CHANGING FACE OF AMPS

The twenty-five (25) importations occurred between January 1, 2005 to December 31, 2005 and the corrections were not made within 90 days after having reason to believe. In fact, it was not until the review of the documentation was completed that the corrections to the value for duty were undertaken. By the fact that no corrections were made to the B3 accounting documents prior to the compliance verification review that commenced on June 27, 2006, your company therefore, failed to make the required corrections within 90 days of the "reason to believe".

For the period of this review AMPS penalties will apply to all 25 samples within the verification. As of January 31, 2007, additional Administrative Monetary Penalties are to be applied to directed self corrections, at the conclusion of a compliance verification review or monitoring activity, where it was found an importer had previous "Reason to Believe"
